

Alaska Child Abuse Prevention Network

The Alaska Child Abuse Prevention Network is a statewide effort striving to increase the involvement and participation of family support programs, parents and community leaders in meeting the challenge of child abuse prevention in Alaska.

Established in 1999, the Network has reached out to over 800 interested community partners across Alaska, offering prevention information through teleconferences, newsletters, resource mailings and a Community Resource Kit. Each regional network also serves as a clearinghouse for prevention resources. The Network, Alaska Children's Trust and Alaska Public Radio Network continue to collaborate on a statewide radio campaign to promote community responsibility for child abuse prevention and family support.

Acknowledgements

We wish to offer special thanks to the creators of the original Alaska Community Resource Kit, from whose imagination and hard work we borrowed liberally and to the State of Alaska, Department of Social Services.
